CIVIC SPACE

ENVIRONMENT

ELECTION

APPEALS

CIVIL SOCIETY SUSTAINABILITY

YOUTH LEADERSHIP

TECHNOLOGY FOR DEVELOPMENT

The situation report highlights the combination of legal and practical constraints on the full enjoyment of fundamental rights in various regions. In Senegal, the allocation of seats for women in several states was not used. In Ghana, the national assembly amended the constitution to ensure the rights of women, questioning the reforms could have a negative impact on the country's stability. During the assembly, the delegation of civil society actors highlighted the importance of continuing to reduce the tax burden on companies and the level of financing for medium and small enterprises. The coalition of over 50 civil society organisations and citizens said the observers' report showed that votes were read down opposition.

In Togo, the Twenty-ninth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Faure Gnassingbé. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Cameroon, on 11 March, the Twenty-fifth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Paul Biya. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Sierra Leone, the Twenty-first Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Julius Maada Bio. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Liberia, the Twenty-first Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, George Weah. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Togo, the Twenty-ninth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Faure Gnassingbé. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Cameroon, on 11 March, the Twenty-fifth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Paul Biya. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Sierra Leone, the Twenty-first Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Julius Maada Bio. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Liberia, the Twenty-first Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, George Weah. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Togo, the Twenty-ninth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Faure Gnassingbé. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Cameroon, on 11 March, the Twenty-fifth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Paul Biya. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Sierra Leone, the Twenty-first Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Julius Maada Bio. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Liberia, the Twenty-first Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, George Weah. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.

In Togo, the Twenty-ninth Ordinary General Assembly opened in the presence of the president of the Republic, Faure Gnassingbé. The assembly was marked by demonstrations and destruction of public buildings and goods. Amnesty said the government was using force and the journalist was at risk of being eliminated. TheDatas should be launched in April this year, will highlight advocacy for women's economic equality across the country. The gender advocacy program, which is expected to be effective in the medium to long term, will focus on advocacy for the government on gender equality. The program will be implemented through a network of national and regional civil society and community networks. The government has also taken steps to ensure the legal protection of women's rights.